TWIG-BARRED GATE is one of a trio of garden doors for which jurors honored architect Nasrin Barbee.

Jurors loved the three rustic Douglas fir gates that Rancho Bernardo architect Nasrin Barbee created to unify the new Mexican-style garden room and other outdoor spaces at her clients' Poway home.

A pair of arched doors beside a new garage opens to a walkway leading to the main entry. A door with twig bars opens to the new garden room with fireplace and barbecue, and a nearby square arched gate leads to a rear patio and pool. Handles are twigs bolted to each door.

"Oftentimes it is attention to details that make a home worth remembering," said juror Bill Bocken.

"Very charming gates," summed up juror Sandra Wagenaar. ■
